IT COSTS A LOT LESS TO BE PROACTIVE

Being proactive is about anticipating and responding to customer questions before they say or do anything.

It's a simple, powerful way to boost customer satisfaction, and reduce demand on your contact centre.

For example, by letting people know their deliveries are going to be late, they don't waste their time waiting. They don't contact you, angry and frustrated.

What's more, they don't even have to go online to track the delivery status and find out for themselves. You have the info, you have their details. So why wait for customers to contact you? You already have the answer to their expected, unasked question.

You can take advantage, use the opportunity to turn what could be a miserable, poor customer experience, into an exceptional experience - all without any agent intervention.

"It costs a hell of a lot less to be proactive, then to service unhappy, frustrated customers."

GURANTEED CUSTOMER SATISFACTION

Businesses are turning to proactive messaging to steer customers in a direction that'll virtually guarantee higher levels of satisfaction.

Streamlining the journey, taking them down the route that'll minimise the need for them to make contact, which in turn results in reduced servicing costs.

Keeping people in the loop means they'll only call when they need that something extra - the real value adding stuff your agents love to deal with. Putting you top of the pile for customer communications and employee engagement.

An automated, flexible, dynamic solution ProActive will help you connect and drive people in the direction you want them to take, ensuring they get the best possible experience on that journey.

Helping you to provide an exceptional service, boosting customer satisfaction whilst making some significant savings.

It's the personal touches that retain customers. And keeps them coming back to you, time and time again.
